Risk Factors and Investment Considerations

The NAV of the Fund may fluctuate due to changes in the market values of the Fund’s investments. Such changes in market value may be attributable to various factors such as:

A. FACTORS EXTERNAL TO THE FUND:

1) MARKET RISK

The risk that movement in the financial markets will adversely affect the investments of the Fund. The markets will fluctuate based on many factors, such as the state of the economy, current events, corporate earnings, and interest rate movements. To properly manage market risk, for investments made in direct securities, various risk measurement methodologies are utilized to quantify the potential changes in portfolio value resulting from changes in security prices. Measures of risk-adjusted performance are also utilized. Market risk is controlled through the establishment of investment limits and by managing the fund according to investment guidelines and parameters that are consistent with its return objective and risk profile.

2) LIQUIDITY RISK

The risk that the investments of the Fund cannot be sold or converted into cash within a reasonable time or in instances where sale or conversion is possible but not at a fair price. To properly manage liquidity risk, a minimum of five percent (5%) up to a maximum of ten percent (10%) of the assets of the Investment Company shall be invested in liquid/semi-liquid assets.

3) INTEREST RATE RISK

The risk that the value of the portfolio will decline as interest rates rise. Bond prices are inversely related to interest rates (i.e. as interest rates increase, bond prices decrease). To mitigate this risk, the Fund Manager closely monitors movements in interest rates.

4) CREDIT RISK

The risk that the bond issuer may not be able to pay its debt when interest payments and maturity falls due. Credit risk is minimized through diversification. Investment and counterparty limits are also established and monitored regularly. All investment outlets and counterparties go through accreditation prior to the execution of investment transactions. On the other hand, the fund manager of the target fund uses the proprietary investment platform which integrates and instantly connects all the functions needed to manage the fund’s risk. The system has comprehensive risk, exposure and attribution reporting capabilities. The fund also uses derivatives for efficient portfolio management. To further mitigate credit risk for derivative counterparties, the fund receives collateral with a value at least equal to the exposure.

5) INFLATION RISK

The risk the return of your investments will not keep pace with the increase in consumer prices. To mitigate inflation risk, the Fund Manager closely monitors inflation.

6) REINVESTMENT RISK

The risk associated with the possibility of having lower returns or earnings when maturing funds or the interest earnings of funds are re-invested. To mitigate reinvestment risk, the Fund Manager closely monitors interest rate trends in order to time the maturities of its portfolio when interest rates are trending upwards, so as to re-invest at higher interest rates.

7) FOREIGN EXCHANGE RISK

This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses from a decline in fund value when the market value of fixed income securities, settled in any other currency, held by the fund are converted/translated to Philippine Peso. To mitigate foreign exchange risk, the fund manager closely monitors the movements in the spot market.

B. RISKS INHERENT TO THE FUND:

1) Feeder-funds invest 90% of its assets in a target fund managed by another fund manager. The fund manager of the feeder-fund does not have any control on how the target fund is managed.

2) Unlike closed-end funds, the investment potential and capability of the Fund is limited by liquidity constraints as the Fund Manager should always ensure that there are sufficient liquid assets to service redemptions at any given time.

3) Unlike bank accounts, investment companies / mutual funds are neither insured with the PDIC nor any other agency of the government, nor guaranteed by the Fund Manager. Before investing in the Fund, investors are expected to understand that the Fund is not a bank deposit product and any income, or loss, shall be for the account of the investor. Investors are advised to read the Prospectus of the Fund, which may be obtained from authorized distributors, before deciding to invest. The Fund is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OR PLAN OF OPERATIONS

As of March 31, 2026

Global markets had a volatile start to 2026. Early strength in January faded as geopolitical tensions escalated, with the Middle East conflict driving a spike in oil prices and a clear shift to risk-off sentiment by March.

In the U.S., growth held up but showed signs of slowing. Job gains were modest overall, unemployment stayed around 4.3%, and wage growth continued to ease. Inflation remained above target and picked up late in the quarter due to higher energy prices. The Federal Reserve kept rates unchanged at 3.50%–3.75%, signaling patience amid rising uncertainty. The 10-year Treasury yield moved higher, ending near 4.3%.

Equities declined, breaking a multi-quarter rally. The S&P 500 fell about 4.4%, with losses led by technology and other growth sectors. The Nasdaq underperformed, while the Dow was more resilient. Energy and materials were the main outperformers, supported by higher commodity prices.

Outside the U.S., markets also weakened. Europe equities declined on renewed energy concerns and still-soft growth, while the ECB kept policy steady. In Asia, Japan stocks held up better earlier in the quarter but lost momentum into March. Emerging markets started strong but gave back gains as risk sentiment deteriorated and capital moved to safer assets.

Overall, the quarter marked a shift from stable conditions to a more uncertain backdrop. Higher oil prices, rising yields, and geopolitical risk weighed on equities, while commodities—especially energy—stood out as the main winners.

Global markets delivered strong performance in 2025, with equities, credit, and emerging market assets posting solid gains despite intermittent volatility, including short-lived dislocations following the Liberation Day tariff announcements.

Equity performance was broad-based, with emerging markets outperforming developed markets. The MSCI World Index returned 19.5% in USD terms, with the S&P 500 Index also posting a 16.4% return. In contrast, emerging markets posted a positive 30.6% return. Global equities advanced as investor sentiment was buoyed by continued progress in Artificial Intelligence (AI) developments, which are increasingly viewed as a defining driver of earnings growth in the years ahead. Ongoing advancements in AI infrastructure, applications, and monetization supported expectations of productivity gains and margin expansion across multiple sectors, particularly in technology and AI-enabled industries. As a result, markets increasingly priced in AI-related growth opportunities as a key structural theme underpinning long-term equity returns.

In fixed income, divergent performance was seen across the segments. Sovereign bond returns were uneven, with US Treasuries outperforming on expectations of policy easing, while European and Japanese government bonds lagged amid differing monetary policy paths. Credit markets were resilient, supported by tightening spreads and solid corporate fundamentals, while commodities posted positive returns led by precious and industrial metals, and the US dollar weakened broadly against G10 currencies as interest-rate differentials narrowed.
