OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. European bond markets in November saw a modest upward drift in yields, driven largely by the European Central Bank's decision to maintain its policy stance. German Bunds, a key benchmark, saw its 3-month bills trade from 1.74% to 1.86% for the month of November. The 10-year traded the range of 2.62% to 2.66%, slightly higher than October levels, with early November yields touching a two-week high near 2.64% following the ECB's pause on tightening. Across the euro area, long-term government bond yields averaged 3.09%, compared to 3.07% in October.

The ECB's late-November meeting confirmed a "wait-and-see" approach, keeping the deposit rate unchanged at 2% and signaling that any future moves would depend on inflation and growth dynamics. In its Financial Stability Review, the ECB warned that fiscal imbalances and geopolitical risks could trigger repricing in sovereign debt markets, underscoring the need for vigilance. While the U.S. Federal Reserve leans toward cuts in 2026, the ECB remains cautious, leaving the door open for hikes if inflation persists near target.

Fund Performance. The Fund returned 0.00% for the month, underperforming its benchmark by 15 basis points. Year-to-date, return amounted to 2.16%, outperforming its benchmark by 37 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The fund will maintain its current duration. Investors in the bond fund must be prepared to withstand short term volatility as higher investment value is normally achieved over the medium to long term.
