OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Euro-denominated bond yields were relatively stable in September. The 10-year German bund closed unchanged at 2.71%, while the 30-year bund was at 3.28%, reflecting a steeper yield curve amid fiscal expansion and investor caution. This movement was influenced by Germany's €500B infrastructure fund and relaxed defense borrowing rules, which raised long-term debt concerns.

The European Central Bank (ECB) held its key rates steady for the third consecutive meeting, keeping the deposit rate at 2.00%. The ECB emphasized a data-dependent approach, citing inflation near its 2% target and balanced risks to growth. ECB President Christine Lagarde reiterated that rate cuts are not currently under consideration, despite speculation. The central bank continues to monitor trade tensions and fiscal developments, particularly in France, which could impact future policy decisions.

Inflation in the euro area rose slightly to 2.2% in September, up from 2.0% in August, driven by persistent service price pressures and a slower decline in energy costs. Core inflation held steady at 2.3%, indicating stable underlying price trends. The ECB's updated projections show GDP growth of 1.2% for 2025, revised up from 0.9%, with inflation expected to average 2.1% in 2025, then ease to 1.7% in 2026.

Fund Performance. The Fund returned 0.13% for the month, underperforming its benchmark by 2 basis points. Year-to-date, return amounted to 1.82%, outperforming its benchmark by 32 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The fund will maintain its current duration. Investors in the bond fund must be prepared to withstand short term volatility as higher investment value is normally achieved over the medium to long term.
