OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The PSEI was up 10.20% or 627.35 points in the month of November to close at 6,780.78. The index is now only down 4.80% year-to-date as of end-November, having recovered much of the losses in Q3.

GDP expanded by 7.6% in Q3, beating consensus estimate of 6.2%, as private consumption remained the key driver for growth despite the high inflationary environment. Meanwhile, inflation continued to rise to 7.7% in October due to higher food prices, while the Bangko Sentral also raised its policy rates by 75 bps in November to 5.0% in an effort to contain inflation. On the corporate side, third quarter earnings results proved to be strong as earnings grew by 42% year-on-year as of Q3 compared to the 40% growth in Q2. Consumer and banking names continued to deliver strong earnings performance as banks' net interest margins improved and loan growth remains robust. Meanwhile profit for consumer names started to recover as commodity prices declined and the country's reopening narrative played out.

The USD-PHP pair also stabilized after topping out near PHP60 per USD as US inflation expectations started to peak. The stronger Peso helped secure foreign inflows into the market in the tune of USD99 million. November was the first month of foreign inflow since February 2022.

Top contributors in November were CNVRG (+25.49%), ALI (+24.15%) and ICT (+18.50%), while the laggards were MER (-7.10%), MPI (-5.46%) and SCC (-3.72%).

The PSEI recovered sharply after testing the 6,000 level despite the persistent headwinds as strong fundamentals, as well as improving foreign inflows propelled the market higher. Key levels are 6,700 for potential area of resistance, while 6,200 shall act as potential level of support. The market would likely trade in a range as it tries to base out after the strong rally in November.

Fund Performance. The Fund returned 8.68% for the month, underperforming its benchmark by 49 basis points. Year-to-date, return amounted to -5.74%, underperforming its benchmark by 171 basis points.

Fund Strategy. Our strategy remains to be invested in quality names with strong fundamentals and superior growth prospects. We also look to be more opportunistic by tactically trading the wild swings in the market as of late.
