OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global markets in July 2026 reversed sharply, moving from June's tentative stabilization back into geopolitical escalation, compounded by resurgent energy-driven inflation risk and growing division within the Federal Reserve. The U.S.–Iran ceasefire, formalized in a mid-June memorandum of understanding, collapsed within days: Iran struck Gulf shipping on June 25 and July 7, prompting roughly 90 U.S. strikes by July 8 and President Trump to declare the deal "over." Brent crude, near $74 per barrel at the start of July, spiked repeatedly on the renewed conflict, reaching $97.04 by July 24 before settling near $92 by month-end — up roughly 24% for the month. June CPI (released mid-July) told an easing story that predated this: -0.4% m/m, 3.5% y/y, down from May's 4.25%, with core at 2.6%. June payrolls also softened (+57,000, unemployment 4.2%). Despite the cooler print, the Fed under Chair Kevin Warsh held rates at 3.50%–3.75% at its July 28–29 meeting by a divided 9–3 vote, with three members dissenting in favor of a hike. Treasury yields rose accordingly — the 10-year climbed 31bps to 4.75%, the 30-year hit 5.28%, its highest since 2007.

Corporate credit and Philippine and Asian bonds faced broad-based weakness in July, pressured by the sharp rise in global benchmark yields and heavy competing supply from AI-related corporate issuance, even as credit spreads widened only modestly (global IG +2bps, U.S. high-yield +9bps) — signaling the pressure was yield-driven rather than credit-driven. The Bloomberg Global Aggregate Corporate Index fell 1.3% and the Bloomberg Global High Yield Index fell 0.4% (both USD-hedged), while the broader Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond Index fell 0.53% for the month. The JPM Total Return Philippines Index underperformed, falling 1.83%, reflecting the same duration-driven pressure weighing on sovereign bonds globally even as the BSP maintained a tight policy stance through June and July.

Fund Performance. The Fund returned -0.64% for the month, underperforming with its benchmark by 13 basis points. Year-to-date, return amounted to -1.26%, underperforming its benchmark by 191 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The fund will maintain its current duration given the possible upside risks to global inflation.
