OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. European equities were up in February as vaccine rollouts, fiscal and monetary stimulus and better-than-expected earnings supported the market. A rapid rise in government bond yields weighed on equities later in the month, prompting the European Central Bank to state that the pace of bond purchases could increase if financial conditions should tighten. The eurozone's vaccine rollout significantly lagged most other developed countries and European leaders stressed the need to accelerate the rollout of vaccines amid increasing fears of the spread of the new coronavirus variants and doubts about the effectiveness of the AstraZeneca-Oxford vaccine. The region's economic prospects received a boost after the European parliament approved the EUR 672.5 billion Recovery and Resilience Facility, the largest block of the EUR 750 billion NextGeneration EU recovery fund. Europe's manufacturing sector expanded at a robust pace in February while the service sector contracted as ongoing virus-related restrictions weighed on businesses.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 1.92% in February, lagging the benchmark by 52 basis points. Allocation to healthcare and energy detracted from performance.

Fund Strategy. The fund will continue to invest in companies with compelling structural growth, solid competitive positioning and attractive valuations, which can potentially lead to higher returns and help mitigate downside risk given the current market environment.
