OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global equities gained in March boosted by the vaccine roll-out globally, coupled with continued government fiscal support and improving economic conditions. Vaccine inoculations are under way and US reached its initial goal of 100 million COVID vaccine doses administered. Developed markets outperformed the broader global equity index due to the progress in the vaccination front while emerging markets posted negative returns on the back of a stronger dollar and slow progress in vaccine acquisition and distribution. President Biden finally signed the USD 1.9 trillion pandemic relief package which includes health-insurance subsidies, unemployment benefits and funding for state and local governments to ramp-up vaccinations and school re-openings. In terms of monetary policy, the Federal Reserve reiterated their accommodative monetary policy and kept rates unchanged. The central bank also indicated that it does not plan on hiking rates or tapering its bond-buying anytime soon. Economic data continued to show positive signs of a recovery, reflected by the pickup in demand as economies re-open. US consumer confidence rose to 109.8, its highest level since the start of the pandemic. Labor market showed signs of strength as nonfarm payrolls beat estimates and increased by 916,000 while unemployment declined to 6% for the month. Eurozone's composite PMI increased from 48.8 to 52.5, as the manufacturing sector ramped up production to meet demand. However, renewed lockdown measures and faltering vaccination roll-out continues to weigh on business activity. China's recovery remained on track as its manufacturing PMI rose to 51.9 in March driven by new orders and exports while its non manufacturing PMI rose to 56.3 due to the robust construction and services sectors.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 1.70% in March, lagging the benchmark by 139 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The fund will continue to invest in companies with compelling structural growth, solid competitive positioning and attractive valuations, which can potentially lead to higher returns and help mitigate downside risk given the current market environment.
