OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global equities posted modest gains in June. US equities reached new highs as economic optimism and vaccine efficiency against the Delta variant boosted markets. Eurozone equities also performed well for the month as the accelerating pace of vaccinations helped the reopening of economies and supported the lifting of lockdown restrictions. Emerging markets declined for the month as the continuing slow pace of vaccinations and resurgence of community infections due to the Delta variant weighed on investor sentiment. The Federal Reserve kept rates unchanged and maintained its accommodative stance but committee members projected two rate hikes by the end of 2023. Inflation concerns were tempered as the central bank remarked that the recent pickup in inflation is transitory and inflation is on track to moderately exceed 2 percent for some time as longer-term expectations remain well-anchored at 2 percent. Economic data continued to reflect positive signs of recovery. US manufacturing activity grew at a record pace as its PMI increased to 62.6 from 62.1 in June driven by the strong domestic demand. Eurozone's business activity grew at its fastest pace in 15 years as the composite PMI increased from 57.1 to 59.2 as lockdown restrictions were lifted across the region. China's PMI reflected a steady recovery albeit at a slower pace as supply chain disruptions weighed on factory activity. In commodity markets, oil prices rallied and rose to their highest level since 2018 as supply is forecasted to tighten in the upcoming months due to strong demand growth and expectations of a cautious OPEC+ in increasing production levels.

Fund performance: The fund returned 3.71% in June, outperforming the benchmark by 71 basis points.

Fund Strategy. We expect the human and economic impact of COVID-19 to remain challenging but are optimistic with the rollout of effective vaccines underway. In geographies where the vaccination rate is lower, localized outbreaks driven by the emerging Delta variant remain a source of concern for the public health system as well as the progress for reopening the economy. Beyond vaccine development, the COVID pandemic highlighted the need for more significant testing infrastructure in developed and emerging markets, which should continue to drive demand within the diagnostics industry. Medical device trends and hospital utilization are improving and we expect the gradual recovery to continue as many medical procedures cannot be deferred indefinitely, and vaccine availability should continue to restore patient confidence in accessing the health care system. The fund will continue to favor companies that develop innovative products designed to address important unmet medical needs. Over the long term, the tailwinds of innovation, an aging population and the globalization of demand cutting-edge Western-style medicines should continue to drive growth for the sector.
