OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines fell 0.10% in January as Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields rose by an average of 7 basis points (bps) across the curve.

Global bond yields rose in early January as general optimism over the coronavirus (COVID19) vaccine kept risk assets afloat. In the US, bonds were sold down following news of a Democratic party sweep—securing control over the Presidency, House and Senate—which raised expectations of further fiscal stimulus to boost the ailing economy. Over the month however, investor preference for safe havens returned amid concerns over the potential delays in vaccine roll-outs across the globe. US economic data continued to be mixed, with purchasing managers' indices pointing to expanding economic activity and construction starts rising in December, while the job market worsened slightly. For the month, the 10-year US Treasury benchmark yield rose 13 basis points to close at the 1.07% level.

In the local economic space, December inflation came in at 3.5% year-on-year, above expectations of 3.2% and bringing full-year 2020 average inflation to 2.6%. Food inflation continued to spike, driven by supply constraints due to the effects of inclement weather and the African Swine Flu. The Philippine full-year GDP figure also disappointed, with fourth-quarter year-on-year growth at -8.3%, bringing the full-year 2020 growth figure to an all-time low of -9.5%. Weak demand and capital formation were the main causes of the decline, as pandemic-related mobility constraints impeded spending and lowered demand expectations, causing companies to cut capital expenditures. The negative growth and high inflation figures, together with doubts about local vaccine acquisition and distribution capability, impaired local risk sentiment, driving investors into safer assets and pushing risk asset prices lower. With its policy rate at record lows and with the possibility of transitorily higher inflation, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) is expected to remain accommodative but maintain current policy. In statements made throughout the month, BSP Governor Benjamin Diokno continued to emphasize the bank's focus on supporting growth using the full range of policy tools at its disposal.

Fund Performance. The Fund rose by 0.06% in January, ahead of its benchmark by 5 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The fund will maintain its duration of less than 1 and will continuously look into corporate bonds for yield enhancement.
