OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. European equity markets ended lower in December as markets were cautious amid weaker economic outlook, hawkish central banks and elevated inflation. However, sentiment improved driven by expectations of peaking inflation, slower pace of interest rate hikes from the European Central Bank and a softer-than-expected economic landing. Annual headline inflation in the Euro area further eased from 10.1% in November to 9.2% in December, supporting the case for easing inflationary pressures that may drive a pivot in the central banks' aggressive monetary tightening policy. Eurozone's business activity improved but remained in the contractionary territory as supply chains stabilized over the month. In commodity markets, gas prices in Europe declined in December as energy demand weakened driven by a milder-than-expected winter, easing the impact of the energy crisis.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 2.96% in December, outperforming the benchmark by 160 basis points. Security selection in financials and consumer staples helped performance. Weaker US dollar and security selection in financials and consumer staples helped performance.

Fund Strategy. We continue to see heightened volatility, high energy prices, supply chain challenges and geopolitical risks. We are monitoring how central banks and governments are tackling high inflation and recessionary risks, and how the impact of energy and gas supplies will affect the economic situation in Europe. The fund will continue to invest in companies with compelling structural growth, solid competitive positioning and attractive valuations, which can potentially lead to higher returns and help mitigate downside risk given the current market environment.
