OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global fixed income markets declined in June. Yields climbed due to expectations of aggressive monetary policy tightening by global central banks and high inflation prints. Global central banks continued their hawkish stance in a bid to curb inflation, with the Federal Reserve raising its interest rates by 75 basis points. The US treasury yield curve flattened from the rate hike announcement, as shorter-term yields rose. The US 10-year yield peaked at 3.47% preceding the rate hike announcement but pulled back later in the month as investors sought safe-haven assets due to recession fears. Riskier credit bonds underperformed compared to comparable government bonds, with US high-yield credit as the worst performing sector of the month. Corporate credit spreads widened on the back of growing recessionary concerns, with investment-grade, high-yield and emerging-market credit widening by 26, 167 and 54 basis points, respectively.

Fund Performance. The fund returned -3.45%, lagging the benchmark by 24 basis points. Sector allocation in emerging market bonds and government bonds detracted from performance.

Fund Strategy. We expect markets to be volatile in the near-term due to geopolitical events mixed with central bank monetary policy action in major economies. We believe that markets will shift its focus from inflation to global growth which could lead to downward pressure in yields. Against this backdrop, the fund will continue to have a balanced allocation with safe fixed income assets (e.g. Treasuries and Government) and riskier fixed income assets such as corporate and EM bonds for yield enhancement. The fund remains to have below-benchmark duration and allocation to government bonds although we are reducing our underweight gradually. In terms of corporate bonds, we continue to be selective in issuers with a preference for higher quality names. We also intend to reduce our exposure to floating rate senior loans.
