OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global equity markets tumbled in December as hawkish rhetoric from central banks and mounting risks of a global slowdown continued to dominate headlines. November US annual headline inflation was softer-than-expected at 7.1%, supporting a slower pace of monetary policy tightening. The Federal Reserve raised its interest rates by 50 basis points in their December meeting, after four consecutive 75 basis point hikes. Despite the slower pace of rate hikes, the central bank remained committed and has indicated that it will keep interest rates higher for longer than expected to bring down inflation. Markets sold off amid concerns about weaker economic data, downside earnings risk and continued hawkish Fed rhetoric. Meanwhile, emerging market equities outperformed broader equity markets as China relaxed its stringent COVID policies. China's health commission released new measures to move the country towards reopening, driving a rebound in Chinese equities as investors banked on its economic reopening. Within the health care sector, biopharmaceuticals mid- and large-cap were the top performing sub-sectors for the period.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 1.22% in December, outperforming the benchmark by 20 basis points. Sector allocation in biopharmaceuticals helped performance.

Fund Strategy. Supportive valuations, robust innovation pipeline and business models that are positioned to show resilience through the cycle leaves us with a positive outlook for the health care sector as we enter 2023. Within the biopharma industry, the fundamental backdrop, resilient earnings and breakthrough innovations, particularly in disease areas and oncology, are expected to become tailwinds in a potential recessionary environment. Outside of biopharma, medical technology companies have numerous opportunities as more attractive medical device categories are poised to accelerate compared to a decade ago, such as new diabetes devices, mitral valve therapies and genetic sequencing. In the medium-term, many firms are expected to grow their addressable market through geographic expansion, new technologies, and new patient populations. The fund will continue to favor companies that develop innovative products designed to address important unmet medical needs. Over the long term, the tailwinds of innovation and an aging population should continue to drive growth for the sector.
