OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global equity markets sold off in January due to continued concerns over elevated inflation and the Federal Reserve's rate hike plan. Geopolitical tensions between US and Russia over Ukraine also weakened investor sentiment and drove the volatility in equity markets. Growth stocks led the laggards as expectations of rising interest rates led to concerns on tighter liquidity and higher financing cost. The Federal Reserve kept rates unchanged but remained on target with its plan to end its bond-buying program in March. The committee implied a more aggressive tightening monetary policy as it expects to increase interest rates and reduce its balance sheet sooner than later. Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell supported this move by emphasizing the economy's high inflation and strong labor market. Economic data was mixed across regions. US manufacturing PMI continued to signal a strong expansion in economic activity while the services sector displayed a sharp decrease in economic activity, attributable to the spillover effect of the Omicron wave. In Europe, economic activity was flat due to the limited impact of Omicron as restrictions remained in place. Meanwhile, in China, weak domestic demand persisted as strong lockdown measures and supply chain issues weighed on consumption. In commodity markets, supply shortages and geopolitical tensions in Russia ramped up oil and gas prices. Brent oil reached $90 a barrel for the first time since October 2014.

Fund Performance: The fund returned -11.54% in January, lagging the benchmark by 415 basis points. Security selection in biopharmaceuticals detracted from performance.

Fund Strategy. COVID-19 disruptions will likely continue for many months, but we are encouraged by strong fundamentals across the healthcare industry, supported by hopes the Omicron wave could peak soon, leading the way to a more normalized investment backdrop. As we enter 2022, attractive valuations and breakthrough innovations in the biopharma industry are compelling and are creating a rich opportunity set for investors. Outside of biopharma, certain medical technology companies are seeing strong fundamentals as they help enable robust drug development and manufacturing in diverse therapeutic categories. COVID-19 testing, development of more convenient routine medical tests and expansion into new attractive categories, such as early cancer screening, should provide support for the diagnostics industry. Within procedure-oriented subsectors, medical devices are expected to experience increase in demand as patients resume elective procedures. These tailwinds across the various healthcare subsectors, coupled with strong valuation support leaves us with a positive outlook in 2022. The fund will continue to favor companies that develop innovative products designed to address important unmet medical needs. Over the long term, the tailwinds of innovation, an aging population and the globalization of demand cutting-edge Western-style medicines should continue to drive growth for the sector.
