KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

You should not invest in this Fund if you do not understand or are not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

Interest Rate Risk:	The fund invests in a portfolio of Philippine Sovereign and corporate securities comprising the JP Morgan Asia Credit Philippines Total Return Index, exposing investors to the risk of loss arising from a rise in interest rates, which generally causes fixed income security prices to decline. Factors/ events that may lead to a rise interest rates include adverse market conditions, issuer-specific factors/ events and/ or negative developments in domestic and global political and economic conditions.
Liquidity Risk:	Investors are exposed to the risk of loss due to the fund's inability to convert security holdings to cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a highly disadvantageous price due to limited buyers/ sellers in the market, low trading volumes or market disruptions, among other reasons/ factors.
Related Party Risk:	Investors are exposed to actual or potential conflicts of interest in the handling of related party transactions by the Trustee, specifically, the execution of trade transactions with related counterparties.
Credit/Default Risk:	Investors are exposed to the risk of loss due to the failure of the borrower/ debt issuer to make timely interest and/ or principal payments on its deposit liabilities, loans, bonds or other debt instruments due to a deterioration in the borrower's/ issuer's financial condition or external factors and events that may affect its ability to repay financial obligations such as negative developments in domestic and global political and economic conditions.
Index Tracking Risk:	Investors are exposed to the risk of not being able to achieve a level of return that matches the index being tracked by the fund due primarily to operating and fund management expenses.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines lost 3.47% in February as Philippine dollar-denominated bonds tracked the sell-off in US Treasuries.

It was a volatile month for global bond markets as the Russia-Ukraine tensions took center stage. Earlier in February speculations for hawkish global central bank actions (including the US Federal Reserve, the Bank of England, and the European Central Bank) caused most investors to sell off their bond holdings. Policymakers had shifted their dovish tone from last year, citing the need to manage elevated inflation that was no longer transitory. In the latter part of the month however, news broke out that Russian's invasion of Ukraine had begun, sparking renewed doubts on a smooth global economic recovery. The geopolitical tensions likewise drove commodities prices higher, particularly oil, further adding fuel to inflationary concerns. Over the month, the benchmark 10-year US Treasury yield rose to as high as 2.04%, before closing the month at the 1.83% level.

In the local economic space, January inflation fell to 3.0% year-on-year, with slower food inflation as well as a more muted rise in utility costs. The figure was slightly lower than consensus estimate of 3.1% and used 2018 as the base year. Food inflation slowed down due to improved harvest and favorable weather conditions. During their policy meeting mid-month, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) held its policy rates steady given its current stable outlook on inflation and its priority to support the economy.

Fund Performance. The fund returned -3.28% in February, outperforming its benchmark by 19 bps. Year-to-date, it outperformed the benchmark by 20 basis points with a return of -5.97%.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
