OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global equities continued to fall in September. Risk-off sentiment was driven by high inflation, rising interest rates, and growing signs of a global economic slowdown. Inflation remained elevated globally, particularly in the eurozone, where inflation increased 10% year over year on the back of soaring energy prices. The European Central Bank and US Federal Reserve both delivered 75 basis point rate hikes in September. China continued to struggle with the economic ramifications of its COVID-19 policies and real estate crisis. Fixed income markets continued to decline as credit spreads widened and yields rose in response to ongoing central banks rate hikes against a backdrop of persistent inflation, mounting recession fears, and intensifying instability in Europe.

Fund Performance. The fund fell by 5.13% in September. Global equities declined amid deteriorating market sentiment and macroeconomic headwinds, including persistently high inflation. Within global fixed income, performance was negatively driven by investment grade credit and high yield credit as yields rose.

Fund Strategy. Going into the second half of 2022, our outlook on global equities have dampened as the probability of a recession has been steadily increasing which is exacerbated by central banks and policy makers tightening financial conditions in a slowing economy. Given higher interest rates, tighter liquidity and weaker financial conditions, we prefer a moderate underweight to global equities. On a regional basis, we remain constructive on Japan as its fiscal stimulus provide tailwinds for its economy and optimistic on US as its fundamentals look more attractive relative to Europe. On the other hand, we are underweight European and Emerging Market equities on the back of growth and inflation concerns. Within fixed income, we are slightly optimistic on duration given that rates rose sharply and yields are reaching the higher end of our estimates. We are underweight credit as a demand driven slowdown could widen spreads further. That said, defaults are likely to stay very low and technicals are strong as foreign demand for yield persists. Finally, we believe this market environment to be supportive of security selection and active management. Against this backdrop, income investors will be best served through a highly diversified portfolio of multi-asset income producing assets that can be dynamically adjusted as market conditions evolve.
