OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global equities declined in October as a rise in long-term government bond yields significantly tightened financial conditions. Inflation continued to fall in most countries and global economic growth was surprisingly resilient but uneven across countries and regions. After a lengthy cycle of aggressive interest-rate hikes, developed market central banks left interest rates unchanged against a backdrop of sharply higher borrowing costs, slowing inflation, and weaker economic growth expectations. Global sovereign bond yields ended higher in most developed markets, after stronger-than-expected economic data further bolstered prospects of “higher for longer” interest rates. Global credit bonds underperformed comparable government bonds as spreads widened.

Fund Performance. The fund declined by 2.05% in October. Within global equities, from a regional perspective, US equities detracted from performance as equities market were pressured by rising Treasury yields amid economic resilience and expectations that the Fed will keep interest rates higher for longer. Within global fixed income, investment grade credit detracted over the period on the back of widening spreads and rising yields.

Fund Strategy. Looking ahead, we maintain a slightly cautious stance and prefer defensive fixed income over equities. While the effects of tighter policy are still playing out, we have reduced our underweight view on global equities and growth fixed income. We think that the lower interest rate sensitivity of consumers and business and overall strength of the consumer makes a US hard landing less likely. Within equities, we continue to focus on quality, preferring companies with pricing power, long-term margin stability and health balance sheets that can withstand inflationary and balance-sheet pressures. Within fixed income, we have an improved outlook on investment grade credit which we believe will be better positioned to weather economic troubles and maintain a neutral stance. Finally, we believe this market environment to be supportive of security selection and active management. Against this backdrop, income investors will be best served through a highly diversified portfolio of multi-asset income producing assets that can be dynamically adjusted as market conditions evolve.
