OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global equity markets modestly rose in April amid expectations of a moderation in monetary policy of global central banks. Markets gained despite the failure of another US regional bank as investors focused on better-than-expected corporate earnings and improving inflation data. Corporate earnings in the first quarter of the year beat estimates driven by the strength in consumer sector. US inflation remained above target but was softer-than-expected at 5% year-on-year in March. Emerging markets underperformed broader global equity indices driven by a sell-off in Chinese equities amid mixed signals of economic growth and escalating geopolitical tensions.

The MSCI ACWI Information Technology Index returned -0.6%. Returns were mixed across the index, with software and services subsectors among the best performing sectors over the month.

Fund Performance. The fund returned -3.13% in April, lagging the benchmark by 248 basis points.

Fund Strategy. For 2023, the technology sector is expected to remain challenged in the earlier part of the year as rate hikes and weakerthan-expected earnings will likely remain as headwinds for the sector. The second half of the year is expected to be more favorable for technology stocks on the back of slowing or halted rate hikes and potentially stronger earnings compared to conservative expectations. While growth assets have been penalized due to rising rate concerns, the companies within the portfolio continue to be underpinned by compelling fundamentals and powerful long-term secular growth drivers. The secular growth trends driving technology are multi-year transformations that are expected to persist, regardless of the macroeconomic environment or geopolitical risk. The fund will continue to focus on these longterm secular themes such as artificial intelligence, cloud computing, electric vehicles, metaverse and quantum computing.
