OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. In March 2025, global equities experienced a notable decline, with the MSCI All Country World Index (ACWI) dropping by 3.95%, bringing the year-to-date performance to -1.32%. The US markets were the primary contributors to this downturn as the S&P 500 fell by 5.75% in March, marking its worst quarter since 2022. Heightened uncertainty surrounding tariff policies and potentially firmer inflation rates significantly impacted investor sentiment. The technology sector was particularly hard hit, with major companies like Nvidia and Tesla experiencing substantial losses.

Conversely, European markets showed resilience, with the MSCI Europe Index gaining 2.4% in March, driven by a recovery in China. Chinese tech giants such as Alibaba and Tencent posted strong gains, buoyed by positive developments in the AI sector. Despite the overall negative performance in developed markets, the energy sector emerged as a bright spot, recording gains both for the month and the quarter. Meanwhile, Japanese equities faced challenges, with the TOPIX and Nikkei 225 indices declining by 0.9% and 4.1%, respectively. Concerns over new tariff proposals and a rising yen contributed to the decline.

The mixed performance across different regions and sectors highlighted the ongoing volatility and uncertainty in the global equities markets.

Fund Performance. The fund returned -3.78%, outperforming the benchmark by 17 basis points. Security selection detracted from performance.

Fund Strategy. We expect major structural trends in sustainability, such as increasing market share of electric vehicles and record installation of wind turbines and solar panels, to continue. The new US administration presents intriguing investment avenues, but also introduces uncertainties for global markets, particularly regarding punitive tariffs against US trading partners, retaliative tariffs against the US and US dollar strengthening. While sustainability-related investment themes may face challenges under the Trump administration, historical precedent suggests that fears may not match reality. In addition, we continue to see support for green technologies through government policies in other parts of the globe. We believe that strong ESG companies are likely to generate positive financial performance over time as investing in sustainability can deliver higher growth and returns through innovation, higher operational efficiency and better risk management.
