OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. In March 2025, global equities experienced a notable decline, with the MSCI All Country World Index (ACWI) dropping by 3.95%, bringing the year-to-date performance to -1.32%. The US markets were the primary contributors to this downturn as the S&P 500 fell by 5.75% in March, marking its worst quarter since 2022. Heightened uncertainty surrounding tariff policies and potentially firmer inflation rates significantly impacted investor sentiment. The technology sector was particularly hard hit, with major companies like Nvidia and Tesla experiencing substantial losses.

Conversely, European markets showed resilience, with the MSCI Europe Index gaining 2.4% in March, driven by a recovery in China. Chinese tech giants such as Alibaba and Tencent posted strong gains, buoyed by positive developments in the AI sector. Despite the overall negative performance in developed markets, the energy sector emerged as a bright spot, recording gains both for the month and the quarter. Meanwhile, Japanese equities faced challenges, with the TOPIX and Nikkei 225 indices declining by 0.9% and 4.1%, respectively. Concerns over new tariff proposals and a rising yen contributed to the decline.

The mixed performance across different regions and sectors highlighted the ongoing volatility and uncertainty in the global equities markets.

Fund Performance. The fund lost 1.34% in March. Within global equities, the US was a key detractor as considerable uncertainty around the scope and magnitude of tariffs curbed risk sentiment and worsened the outlook for inflation and economic growth, fueling fears of stagflation and recession. Within global fixed income, currency hedging across our fixed income strategies detracted as the dollar depreciated due to US recession fears. Lastly, tactical asset allocation pulled back due to our long German duration and long US equity positions.

Fund Strategy. Over a 12-month horizon, we are still modestly positive on equities. From a relative equity regional standpoint, we remain neutral across regions. The rotation theme out of US into international Developed markets may continue given the fiscal impulse is shifting from contraction in the US to expansion in Europe and relatively accommodative policy in Japan, coupled with relatively cheaper valuations outside the US. While adding to non-US DM equities is tempting given an overall view that Europe and Japan are more attractive than the US, we think recent repricing and current uncertainty warrants waiting for a better entry point.

Finally, we believe this market environment to be supportive of security selection and active management. Against this back-drop, income investors will be best served through a highly diversified portfolio of multi-asset income producing assets that can be dynamically adjusted as market conditions evolve.
