OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. MSCI AC Asia Pacific ex Japan gained during the month, continuing the market momentum from May. Despite some disagreements between trading partners, progress in the US-China trade talks and de-escalation in the Middle East conflict led equity markets higher. Lower US Treasury yields and a weaker dollar also led to higher flows into Asian markets during the month. The South Korean market recorded gains following the presidential elections, as broad optimism about improvements in corporate governance led to stock re-rating. Taiwan gained over the month as technology stocks benefited from the AI momentum. ASEAN again lagged behind its regional neighbors, with Vietnam relatively better off due to easing trade tensions, but Indonesia was dragged down by banks. The fund marginally underperformed the benchmark in June. Stock selection in China detracted from performance. Our holdings in Midea, Alibaba, Tencent, and not owning Xiaomi pulled returns back. In the case of Midea, the recall of a popular air-conditioning unit manufactured by the company negatively impacted sentiment. Chinese internet giants Alibaba and Tencent also detracted from performance as intensifying competition across broader e-commerce weighed on their share prices. The zero dividend yield company, Xiaomi has positively surprised the market with exceptionally strong demand for its new EV car model (YU7). Within Indonesia, Bank Central Asia and Bank Mandiri were the top detractors. Indonesian equities faced a challenging month as Indonesia has been struggling with liquidity tightness and due to investor concerns over the Middle East conflict and a spike in crude oil prices, which raised fears about Indonesia's fiscal deficit. On the positive side, stock selection and the overweight allocation to Korea primarily contributed to the outperformance. Our stock selection in the tech company SK Hynix, as well as a few financial names, DB Insurance and Hana Financial, generated strong gains. The Korean equities market was boosted by positive sentiment and subsequent foreign inflows post the election of a more market-reform-minded President during the month. Thanks to its leadership in the high-bandwidth memory (HBM) segment, our stock selection in SK Hynix performed well as demand for HBM and memory products remained strong. In terms of portfolio activities, we initiated positions in a healthcare name that has entered the income universe with a mid-single-digit yield. We also initiated positions in an Australian financial name and an energy name in China. We added to telecom names in Korea and Indonesia. To fund these purchases and additions, we took profit in names that have outperformed in Australia and China.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 5.92% in June, outperforming the benchmark by 26 basis points. Stock selection in Korea helped the most.

Fund Strategy. The U.S. administration's reciprocal tariffs, along with subsequent exemptions and delays, are likely to result in slower growth and higher inflation as economies adjust, creating a challenging environment for Asia Pacific markets. However, economies with large domestic markets, like China and India, may be more resilient, and a weaker USD typically benefits Asian markets. Perception around China has improved considerably since the second half of 2024, particularly around its property and technology sectors, even as other uncertainties persist, not least the U.S. administration's approach to tariffs and sanctions/trade restrictions. For the first time in three years, real estate inventory is dropping to long-run average rates, a key sign of market clearing and reduction of excesses. As for technology, investors have been surprised by the degree of Chinese innovation, be it the low-cost alternative AI model by DeepSeek, or the significant technological advances in charging and battery technology. India and Indonesia face cyclical slowdowns and valuations have moderated. Both still offer long-term growth opportunities as their respective governments look set to continue the policy support of recent years, which is likely to see them maintain their respective investment-led expansions. Tech-heavy North Asia is becoming embedded as an integral part of the growing AI supply chain; however, it will not be immune to recession risks. Consequently, valuation discipline will be important given rapid changes in investor sentiment. With increased economic uncertainty, volatility will remain elevated, but there are reasons to be more optimistic about Asian equities: a weaker USD may finally allow other central banks room to cut interest rates, domestic stimulus is likely, and perception around China's economy has changed given an improving property outlook and technology innovation.
