OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. In May 2025, global bond markets continued to perform steadily amid a backdrop of easing inflationary pressures and expectations of more accommodative monetary policies. US Treasury yields declined slightly, supporting global bond prices, and the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond Index posted modest gains. During its May 2025 meeting, the Federal Reserve held its benchmark interest rate steady at 4.25% to 4.5% while maintaining a “wait-and-see” approach amid rising uncertainty in the economic outlook. While inflation remained slightly above the Fed’s 2% target, the central bank signalled flexibility to adjust policy depending on how inflation and labor market conditions evolve in the coming months. Investor sentiment remained cautious but constructive, with continued interest in fixed income as a hedge against equity market volatility. Emerging market bonds also saw inflows, benefiting from a weaker US dollar and improving risk appetite. In the Philippines, the dollar-denominated bond market remained stable and attractive to investors. The government’s earlier issuances of global bonds, including long-dated USD tranches, continued to trade actively in secondary markets. These instruments remained appealing due to their relatively high yields and the country’s improving fiscal outlook. Additionally, the Philippines maintained its momentum in sustainable finance, with a significant portion of its foreign-currency debt stock composed of sustainability bonds. For the month, the JP Morgan Asia Credit Index - Philippines returned 0.07%. On the local front, Philippine headline inflation slowed to 1.4% in April 2025, down from 1.8% in March, marking one of the lowest rates in recent years. This decline was driven by easing prices in key commodity groups such as food and transport. Meanwhile, the country’s GDP growth outlook remained strong, with the Asian Development Bank projecting a 6.0% expansion for 2025, supported by robust domestic demand and infrastructure investments. These developments reinforced investor confidence in Philippine assets, including its dollar-denominated bonds.

Fund Performance. The Fund returned -0.13% for the month, underperforming its benchmark by 20 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The Fund looks to maintain its duration position as interest rates are expected to decline in the medium term. Market volatility may persist due to ongoing uncertainties in the global economic landscape, particularly due to the rapidly evolving US trade policies. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
